Deaf babies CAN develop language naturally

....Just like hearing babies

Through the Natural Aural approach

My baby is deaf. . .

Finding out that your baby has a hearing loss early means that your baby:-

. . . . can be well aided from the start.

.....will begin to access spoken Language.

.....and your baby has the opportunity to acquire this language through age appropriate interactions and play.

.....you and your baby are both naturally pre-programmed to interact spontaneously and meaningfully.

How do hearing babies develop language?

- They love faces
- They love voices especially the exaggerated language we use naturally with babies
- They love singing and music
- They love routines and the talk, song and play that goes with it
- They love anticipation games and your touch and your smiley face
- They love it when you give them your undivided attention

. . . it is just the same for your baby

With working technology...and families talking and interacting

The audiologist can ensure that the technology is right for your baby.

You can make sure it is worn and working.

- You know your baby
- You know how to make him smile
- You know what he needs and you know what he likes
- You are watching and listening to him
- You know what to do as it comes naturally
- You are the expert
